County Highway Engineer Faris of Carrollton was here Monday and out the levee across the ditch on the old Bitter farm, just north of the Santa Fe railroad, and let the water run off of the public road which has been rendered almost impassable by the enormous accumulation of water from the late rains. A stranger in Carrollton, a one armed man about 60 years of age, was slugged Monday and left unconscious in a refrigerator car at the Burlington depot. The man says he met two strangers on our streets early in the morning and took a drink or two with them. He then accompanied one of them to the Burlington depot. The other one met them there and the two forced the old man to get into the car. He was then knocked unconscious, robbed of what money he had and was locked in the car. When he came to he began to call for help and pound on the side of the car. Frank Conover happened to be passing and released the old man three hours after he was locked up.
